conference scheduled for Friday, but also European peace.

SHIPS NOT NAMED
An editorial for this morning's edition of L'Espresso di Roma said: "One thing appears clear, upon Russia falls the responsibility for this attempt to upset European peace."

The torpedoes Russian ships were not named in the Soviet note, but the Tsimok and the Bulgov were the most recent to be sunk in the Mediterranean. The Soviet Union demanded indemnity and punishment of the guilty persons.

England, France Unite To War on 'Pirate Subs'

London, Sept. 7 (AP)—Great Britain and France decided today that their navies were strong enough to stop "Mediterranean piracy" without any help and therefore to go ahead with a conference on the matter, with or without Italy's participation.

The decision to go ahead with the conference in Switzerland, Friday, was disclosed authoritatively after Soviet Russia had protested to Italy—and been angrily rebuffed—on charges that Italian submarines were responsible for the sinking of two Soviet freighters off Sicily.

Informed British sources made it plain that the Italian-Soviet trouble does not change the situation at all. The talks are designed to find a way to stop mysterious attacks, some of them by unidentified submarines, on the shipping of many nations.

Italian Embassy In Moscow Guarded

London, Sept. 7 (IN)—Police guards have surrounded the Italian embassy in Moscow, as a result of Soviet charges that Italian submarines, captured by Russia, were used to sink Soviet ships.

The Moscow said the guards were stationed around the embassy after Soviet protest meetings and demonstrations were held.

It added that Italy's reply to the Russian charges were posted under the name of "Anzani" in Moscow and that Soviet Directorate of State Security was reported to have been deeply shocked by the Italian attitude.

Greatest AMOCO-GAS

The history of America is the story of achievement! Of pioneering in new fields! The history of transportation and gasoline is also a story of achievement. We are proud of the important part the American Oil Company has played in this history.

American Oil Company revolutionized the automotive industry by introducing the first and original special motor fuel, Amoco-Gas. This contribution made possible today's high compression motor!

Today American Oil Company continues to make history! Recently new processes were perfected... new equipment developed... new additions and improvements made to what was already the world's greatest refining unit. A way was found to make the world's finest motor fuel even better!

The new Amoco-Gas is ready now! Try it! It will give you a new idea of smoothness, of outstanding performance and responsiveness. It will give you a new idea of economy, too. Its extra mileage means lower cost in the long run.

Joan Thomson Makes Debut At The Country Club

By BETTY ALDEN

SUMMER VACATION paths which have led the season's debutantes to practically all the fashionable resorts in this country and Europe, converged at The Country Club this afternoon for the first in-town party of the fall season.

Joan Thomson was the honored deb at the luncheon which might be said to have marked the end of the vacation season... and set the social ball to rolling once again... and comparing notes about the unusual sights to be seen in European countries, or even while "seeing America first" supplied plenty of material for conversation among the girls who drove in from shore and country to greet Joan and her mother...

Joan enhanced her blonde hair and complexion with a lovely dress of royal blue velvet with which she wore a simple black belt trimmed with a royal blue quill... Among her guests were Cynthia Giam, one of the deb who spent the summer traveling in Europe... Margaret Verhoff, one of the many small tables were Mary Oiler, who came up from Somerville, Lucy Pope, who, like the guest of honor is an ardent tennis fan and didn't miss a day at the recent National Tennis tournament at Longwood... Lucy and Joan are also successful tennis players.

John had her party right after Labor Day because she is leaving Barnington College and has to leave tomorrow... Margaret Verhoff, Emily Pope, who, like the guest of honor is an ardent tennis fan and didn't miss a day at the recent National Tennis tournament at Longwood... Lucy and Joan are also successful tennis players.

Miss Thomson graduated from Beacon Country Day and spent part of her summer vacation at Boothbay Harbor, Me.

Holland's Crown Princess Proves Happiness Recipe for Beauty

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Have you happened to notice a recent photograph of Princess Juliana of Holland? Did you think her charming? Lovely? Radiant? With quite a bit of dash and go about her?

But, surely, that's rather unusual! Because a year ago she was nothing of the sort.

She was then a rather plump, somewhat dowdy young woman with that comfortable look that the Hollanders have of being the best part in the world underfoot.

But, surely, that's rather unusual! Because a year ago she was nothing of the sort.

CHAPTER 32
GAY opened the French window that gave on the balcony overlooking the avenue.

"And now, as I look out I wonder what a beautiful picture I shall see. The morning sun will be shining on the leaves of the trees, and the birds will be singing their sweet songs. How lovely it will be!"

"Yes, it will be lovely," said May. "But I wonder what a beautiful picture I shall see. The morning sun will be shining on the leaves of the trees, and the birds will be singing their sweet songs. How lovely it will be!"

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS! BECOME SPORTS WRITERS

An announcement of major importance to every high school boy and girl of New England is made here today.

It's an opportunity that every red blooded youngster has longed for, a golden chance to realize a craving which goes hand-in-hand with those who love sports.

Briefly it is this:
The Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser invite every boy and girl in high school to send in a story of their high school football team. It can deal with prospects for the coming season, it can be an interview with star players or the coach, it can be some sort of a feature having to do with the unusual aspects of a certain player or coach.

In other words, anything which is of NEWS value or FEATURE value will be acceptable.

These stories can be up to 1000 words in length, no more. This is one full column in the sports pages. Each day for close to a month, a story will appear under the writer's by-line, a dream realization, and his or her picture will be inserted as well, providing a suitable one is mailed with the manuscript.

There will be prizes, too.
The prizes will be pairs of tickets to the choice football games played by Boston College and Harvard.

The list of games for which the tickets will be awarded will be announced soon.

If this isn't a grand and glorious opportunity, then we don't know our youngsters.

Who knows but what it will be the stepping stone to a career as a metropolitan sports writer.

Every day of the week this office as well as those of other leading sports departments are deluged with youngsters inquiries asking "How can we best go about becoming a sports writer?"

Well, fellows and girls, here's the best possible answer we've ever discovered.

School starts this week.

The stories will be judged by competent critics. They will take into main consideration the news value, the feature value, the style, the brightness, the clarity, the language, all of which go into making successful reporting.

Letters may be typewritten or written in long hand, the former preferably. But all must be legible and neatly written.

Every story must include a separate piece of paper on which the author's name, his or her age, school, class, and headmaster must be enclosed.

Any other information having to do with the author, whether or not he or she is an athlete, may also be sent along.

We'll have more about this grand story writing contest daily. But in the meanwhile, let's get our heads together and get to concocting the finest series of high school football stories ever written from first hand observation.

Remember: the stories must be based entirely on fact, not figment of imagination.

Start today. All stories are to be sent to the School Story Writing Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

Governor Quinn and Walter O'Hara Score Bloodless Victories

AN UNTOLD AMOUNT OF BOREDOM was spared future generations of Rhode Island school kids when Civil War took a holiday at Narragansett's horse park.

The kids might have had to memorize Sept. 6 as the bloody battle date when Governor Robert E. For Exasperated Quinn ordered his State auditors to capture Walter E. for Emotional O'Hara's office ledgers from a brave and loyal band of Pawtucket's blue-bloused cops.

The Pawtucket fusiliers were drawn around the pent-house portals in crap-shooting formation as the Governor's auditors advanced like picnic skirmishers and wagged their brief cases and shook their fountain pens menacingly.

"Steady, men," commanded the intrepid sergeant to the pick of the Blackstone Valley sidewalks. Many a grizzled chin levelled, many a brave eye squinted, and many a set of banana fingers reached for a tooth-quill to probe back teeth in the face of the foe. It was a stirring example of courage within expectorating distance of the enemy.

Upstairs in his stucco castle the Prince of the Parimutuels was brooding beside a priceless gold goblet, one of a set of heirlooms presented by ex-Governor Joe Ely and General Charles Cole.

The multiple mums of The O'Hara was composing a statement to the press, sulphuric spluttering which he tossed tentatively as they passed his lips for the proper mixture of ash and lava. He practiced right hand jabs at an imaginary chin and puckered the imperial puss in a ferocious frown.

Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, R.I., Sept. 7.—The battle of Narragansett Park looks as if it is going to have more chapters than the battle of Bull Run. When in high school, I used to read about the first and second battles of Bull Run. In Civil War days, the rival armies used to use the same battle grounds over again so as to save ground rent.

Walter O'Hara was still having drinks for his friends in the pent-house today. It has been O'Hara's boast that nobody other than him will have enough to drink for as much in his penthouse. He says that he will set the bar up for his friends and their guests, and that he will pass up the bar for his friends.

BAMA Banks on SOPHS NEEDED FOR REPLACEMENTS

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Sept. 7 (AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, one of the nation's few undefeated teams last year, will ebb or flow this fall largely on the performance of sophomores.

Coach Frank Thomas said today "We're counting heavily on sophomores, especially at tackle and for reserve guards and backs."

"If the (sophomores) come through for us against varsity opposition in Tennessee for instance, we'll be in pretty good shape."

"Our defense," Thomas added, "should be stronger, with a fine group of ends. We'll be a little ahead on offense and quite a little on defense."

Only one varsity tackle, Redmond, and one defensive end, Hargrave, were back from last year's team. The rest of the line will be made up of sophomores and freshmen.

6,000,000 Jews Hit European Persecutions

This is the second and concluding article on major world events which affected the Jewish race and wrote new history during their calamitous year 1937, which began last night. The first article appeared in Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Six million Jews in Europe struggled down the eternal road, persecuted in Poland, Germany, Italy and massacred in Palestine by Arabs.

While this grim tragedy was being enacted, a dramatic incident took place in a little Swiss town near the Alps. It was the famous revenge murder which drew world notice.

David Frankfurter, Jewish head of the Swiss Jewish community, was killed in a shooting in the town of Basel. The killing of Wilhelm Gustaf, head of the Nazis in Switzerland.

"I wish it were Hitler," he had said as he fired fatal shots into Gustaf's back.

The Nazis made the trial a background for propaganda. The German press announced that the killing of the Jewish head of the Swiss Jewish community was a "crime of the Jewish race."

HANEY On N.Y. Store SALES

EYES PRICE MAINTENANCE

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

Special to Boston Evening American

East Jeffrey, N. H., Sept. 7.—Recently published reports on department store sales in the United States indicate that, in New York territory at least, sales of books have been making smaller gains than hitherto in July, sales of shoes and liquor fell below those of a year ago for the third month.

Several areas show a reduction in physical volume of transactions when compared with last year.

The simplest explanation of these facts seems to lie in the price maintenance activities of manufacturers. For example, one of the lines that the distributors had raised prices, whiskey sales had been falling.

Not long ago, H. H. Macy and Co. announced that it was going to market their own brands of certain goods at a considerable reduction. This large New York store has been a pioneer in price maintenance and now claims that it can make good profit on its own brands.

BOSTON WoodMart IS DULL AUSTRALIAN PRICES UP

Trading in wool on the Boston market came practically to a standstill during the past week. The development that absorbed the greater part of the interest of holders and users of wool was the opening sales of the new season's wool in Australia. Prices at the opening on Monday were reported firm to slightly higher than prices at the close of last season with England and the continent doing most of the buying and Japan not operating.

Prices declined from the opening on Tuesday and Wednesday and were irregular on Thursday. This trend in Australia was somewhat surprising, as the market had been expected to be more active. An occasional small lot of fine hair was sold, but the bulk of the season's wool was not sold.

No activity was reported in fleece wool on the Boston market. Prices were reported firm to slightly higher than prices at the close of last season with England and the continent doing most of the buying and Japan not operating.

Food Price Decline Halts Increase in Wages

Food prices have shown a downward tendency since March when the peak for the current inflationary movement was reached, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. The food price index, which was 100 in March, is now 98.5, a decline of 1.5 points. This indicates a halt in the upward movement of food prices, which has been a major factor in the increase in wages.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute, which is a non-profit organization, has been studying the relationship between food prices and wages. It has found that when food prices rise, wages tend to rise as well. This is because food is a major expense for most workers, and when food prices rise, workers need higher wages to maintain their standard of living.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

Los Angeles will probably get the 30th National Convention of the American Legion.

Damon Runyon

This statement may seem a little remote from the fact that the matter is to be decided by the Los Angeles Convention, but it is not.

The place is full of actors. Mr. Naughton, to be sure, is a legitimate himself. He moved in the Great War and was in big demand among his officers who liked to have him between them and the enemy.

A master of 20 odd years back, Mr. Naughton is now one of the most famous in sport in this country. It was established by the father of the current Mr. Naughton, who signed himself W. W. Naughton, but was generally known as "Uncle Bill."

"Uncle Bill" was a sports writer in New York, Chicago and San Francisco, and for many years the foremost of his craft. He was a first, dignified gentleman, of powerful personality, and great wit, which he specialized in, boxing, and whose word was law in that game across a long stretch of time.

Mr. Naughton was the top man in sport in Great Britain throughout the latter years of his life. He was a high salaried man in the days when high salaries for sports writers were a novelty.

He probably knew more about boxing than any other writer here, and since his time, his dignity was broken down by one of his sons, who is now a famous writer.

While he lived, he was the man to go to for boxing news, and he was a great deal of fun to be around. He was a great deal of fun to be around.
